Books That Bind the Heart to God

Welcome to the second CLP Review!

I am sure that you have already begun planning for the upcoming Thanksgiving season. Christian Liberty Press has books for both children and young people that will help them better understand the life and times of our Pilgrim forefathers.

We are also excited to inform you of our latest effort to improve both the look and content of our product line. We have just published the third edition of The Land of Fair Play. This text will be of great use to students this coming fall as this nation experiences an important presidential election. See the next page for further details.

Finally, we have developed a new product catalog for schools and booksellers. A copy is enclosed for your use.

STORIES OF THE PILGRIMS

This delightful reader, originally written by Margaret Pumphrey, tells intriguing accounts of the adventures of the Pilgrims as they go from England to Holland and then to America. This full-color book brings history alive so students can experience the day-to-day lifestyle of our Pilgrim fathers.

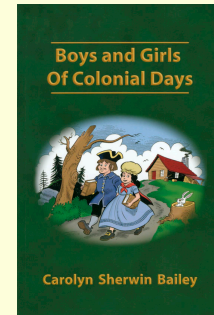

This 230-page book has recently been revised and updated, including improved, four-color illustrations, comprehension questions, and vocabulary words. The list price is $8.95. A separate answer key is available for $2.00.

THE MAYFLOWER PILGRIMS

This book by Edmund J. Carpenter tells the story of the establishment of the Plymouth colony. Both teens and adults will come to understand the true motivations and struggles of the Pilgrims as they read this book. It contains several illustrations.

This 117-page book is designed for high school students and adults. The list price for this reader is $6.95.

Boys and Girls of Colonial Days

This illustrated, full-color reader teaches children about America's colonial period through a series of delightful stories. Children learn more about life among the Pilgrims, Benjamin Franklin, George Washington, and Betsy Ross as they read about the children who lived during our past.

This 140-page reader includes review questions and is designed for children ages eight and nine. The list price is $7.95. A separate answer key is available for a list price of $2.00. A test packet is also available for $1.50.

THE LAND OF FAIR PLAY, THIRD EDITION

This U.S. civics text has recently been revised. The Land of Fair Play provides students with detailed information regarding how our local, state, and federal governments work. The primary emphasis of the text is providing young people with the knowledge they need to intelligently exercise their citizenship responsibilities.

The third edition has a more appealing cover, updated content, and additional illustrations. The answer key and test packet have also been revised. We are confident that you and your students will find this new edition to be both interesting and informative, especially during this election year. Please note the following details regarding this new edition.
